Stay informed and be involved

Clean Boats, Clean Waters program volunteers at your lake can make a big difference by helping to prevent the spread of unwanted aquatic invasive species. Volunteers share up-to-date information with visiting boaters about how to inspect and clean their watercraft and equipment, and how to manage invasive species if found.

A CBCW volunteer is caring, informed and passionate about maintaining the water quality of their lake. They want to share that passion with others through sharing their knowledge and by reporting what they find to program organizers to be entered in a state wide database tracking the location of aquatic invasive species.

AQUATIC INVASIVE SPECIES (AIS) OF CONCERN IN MICHIGAN

Invasive aquatic species are non-native plants, animals and pathogens whose introduction causes, or is likely to cause harm to the environment, economy or to human health. AIS can reduce or eliminate native species and recreational opportunities. AIS also can negatively impact real estate prices and the over-all economy.

Species of concern include:

- Eurasian Water Milfoil  •  Zebra Mussel
- Curly-leaf Pondweed  •  Quagga Mussel
- Purple Loosestrife  •  Spiny Water flea
- Rusty Crayfish  •  Hydrilla
